

Craig Holman, Ph.D.

Public Citizen

Dr. Craig Holman is currently the Capitol Hill representative for Public Citizen in Washington, D.C. He serves as the organization's lobbyist on campaign finance and governmental ethics. Previously, Holman was Senior Policy Analyst at the Brennan Center for Justice, New York University School of Law.

Holman worked closely with reform organizations and congressional leadership in drafting and promoting "For the People Act," the sweeping 2019 ethics and campaign finance reform act that has passed the House and is being debated in the Senate; the "STOCK Act" that applied for the first time the laws against insider trading to members of Congress in 2012; as well as the "Honest Leadership and Open Government Act," the federal lobbying and ethics reform legislation signed into law in 2007. Holman has continued to work at improving ethics regulations and lobbying disclosure, both in the United States and abroad.

Holman lectured across Italy and Brazil in the summer of 2016, sponsored by the State Department, on political corruption and elections in the United States. He has also lectured on governmental ethics and lobby reform on several occasions in Brussels and Prague, and frequently testifies about government reform before the U.S. Congress, the European Parliament and Commission, and federal regulatory agencies.

Some of his publications include: "The Structure and Organization of Congress and the Practice of Lobbying," (co-authored with Jamie Conrad), in Rebecca Gordon and Thomas Susman (American Bar Association), eds. THE LOBBYING MANUAL (2016); "The Tension Between Lobbying and Campaign Finance Laws: Rolling Back the Gains Made Under the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act," Election Law Journal (2014); "Lobbying and Transparency: A Comparative Analysis of Regulatory Reform," (co-authored with William Luneburg) Interest Groups & Advocacy (2012); and "Promoting Integrity of Lobbying by Self-Regulation," (co-authored with Thomas Susman) in Janos Bertok (OECD), ed. LOBBYISTS, GOVERNMENT AND THE PUBLIC TRUST (Paris, 2010).
