Daniel A. Schwager, Esq. Chief Counsel and Staff Director United States House of Representatives Committee on Ethics 1015 Longworth House Office Building Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Schwager:

We are counsel to Representative Silvestre Reyes. We appreciate the opportunity to respond to the Report and Findings regarding Mr. Reyes that the Office of Congressional Ethics ("OCE") transmitted to the Committee on Ethics. Thank you also for providing us with a copy of the Findings, which we requested from OCE, but which OCE would not provide us.

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Reyes was elected to the House in 1996. He will leave Congress in January, having been defeated in the primary election after redistricting. OCE wrongly referred two allegations against Mr. Reyes to the Committee for further investigation. It based its review and referral not on any substantial evidence, but rather on a single, conclusory news article that was traceable to his primary opponent and written toward the end of the campaign. This article, especially taken in its context, provided no reasonable basis to believe that Mr. Reyes violated any law or standard of conduct, nor does it support referral to the Committee. OCE erred in referring this matter.

OCE repeatedly erred in its dealings with Mr. Reyes. He sought to explain to OCE why the article's claims were not supported, but to no avail. He repeatedly asked for the evidence against him that would support the matter's continued pursuit, so that he could respond, but OCE refused to provide it. It appears now that there was no such evidence: OCE's Findings are based entirely on twenty-five pages from Mr. Reyes's publicly filed Federal Election Commission ("FEC") reports. Finally, after Mr. Reyes objected to this process, OCE drew a prohibited negative inference against him for his supposed lack of cooperation, thereby creating the false—and impermissible—impression that the allegations had weight. Having served as a law enforcement officer for over twenty-six years, Mr. Reyes has been affronted by the lack of care and responsiveness shown by OCE throughout this review. OCE's initial correspondence even misspelled his name as "Sylvestre."

The true facts demonstrate that Mr. Reyes violated no law, rule or standard of conduct, and that the Committee should dismiss this matter. On the very eve of Mr. Reyes's departure from the Congress, the Committee should take care not to release a flawed report and findings that would otherwise be the last word on almost forty-six years of public service.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

In the spring of 2012, Mr. Reyes was engaged in a competitive primary battle with Robert O'Rourke, also a Democratic candidate for the United States House of Representatives for the Sixteenth District of Texas. The O'Rourke campaign pored through Mr. Reyes's publicly accessible FEC reports and identified disbursements which, they contended, represented prohibited personal use of campaign funds under FEC and House rules. The O'Rourke campaign identified these disbursements to a local newspaper, the El Paso Times, which reported them in a story on May 13, 2012. Specifically, the article questioned whether Mr. Reyes held campaign meetings in the Members Dining Room, as several disbursements for meals were reported as made for "campaign meetings." It also questioned whether Mr. Reyes converted campaign funds to personal use through disbursements made in connection with a campaign office that was maintained in his daughter's home.

Mr. Reyes explained in the article that the meals were officially connected and had been miscoded by his campaign treasurer. Mr. Reyes responded further that campaign funds were used to improve his campaign office, which he kept in his daughter's home in order to reduce costs. While the newspaper termed the disbursements for the campaign office as "apparent violations," a former FEC spokesman, the Center for Responsive Politics' Bob Biersack, was more guarded in his comments to the paper, which quoted him as saying, in some cases, "there's no blanket 'yes, you can,' or 'no, you can't.""

Ten days later, on May 23, 2012, OCE initiated a preliminary review of Mr. Reyes's conduct. Its allegations were identical to those raised in the article. Given the timing, similarity in content, and lack of any corroborating allegations or evidence, OCE's review was plainly based on the lone, negative article.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

The OCE report makes two separate allegations, neither of which is supported by evidence. First, it alleges that Mr. Reyes may have held campaign meetings on House property. Second, it alleges that Mr. Reyes may have impermissibly used campaign funds to pay for certain expenses related to his daughter's residence. As demonstrated below, neither of these allegations has merit.

A. Mr. Reyes did not hold campaign meetings on House property.

In its referral, OCE alleges that Mr. Reyes "may have held campaign meetings on House property." In support of this allegation, OCE notes that, in late 2011, the Reyes Committee made five reimbursements to Mr. Reyes for expenses incurred at the House of Representatives, with "campaign meeting" listed as the purpose of the disbursements. As Mr. Reyes maintained in his multiple communications with OCE, this allegation is categorically false. The fact that disbursements list "campaign meeting" as their purpose results from the particular system that Mr. Reyes's campaign treasurer used for approving receipts and coding disbursements.

After nearly sixteen years in the House of Representatives, Mr. Reyes understands that House buildings, rooms, and offices may not be used for the conduct of campaign or political activities and that this prohibition covers a wide swath of behavior from fundraising to campaign strategy meetings. He is equally aware, however, that there is no prohibition against paying for officially connected meetings in the Members Dining Room out of campaign funds and that, in fact, such activity is quite common.² The disbursements in question here were of the latter type—meals that were officially connected but paid for out of campaign funds.

As detailed in the attached affidavit of Mr. Reyes's campaign treasurer, Ronald E. Pate, Mr. Reyes's campaign has had procedures in place to ensure that all of its disbursements are for officially connected or campaign related expenses and therefore constitute proper uses of campaign funds. Under these procedures, Mr. Reyes and his staff members submit receipts for campaign and officeholder expenses to Mr. Pate. After reviewing each expense, Mr. Pate decides whether it may be approved for reimbursement. If an expense is approved, Mr. Pate then decides how it should be reported to the FEC. Mr. Pate generally classifies disbursements from the campaign account for meetings as "campaign meetings," regardless of whether they are campaign related or officially connected.³

During late 2011, Mr. Pate used the term "campaign meeting" to describe meetings or meals paid for out of campaign funds. The term did not reflect the actual activity which occurred at the meals. The decision to code officeholder and campaign meals paid out of campaign funds uniformly as "campaign meals" was entirely Mr. Pate's. It was not a decision about which Mr. Reyes was aware until these allegations were made in his campaign.

The five disbursements listed in the OCE report were all for officially connected activity:

- The disbursement for $59.50 on July 21, 2011 paid for a scheduled lunch with Iram Ali, a former Intelligence Committee staff member, to discuss official business on June 1, 2011.⁴
- 2. The disbursement for $136.75 on August 23, 2011 paid for two lunches. One was with Lydia de la Vina de Foley, Executive Director of the Congressional Club to discuss the designation of the Congressional Club as a historic structure on July 28, 2011.⁵ The other was an unscheduled lunch to discuss official business with Members on July 19, 2011.⁶
- 3. The disbursement for $100.75 on September 23, 2011 paid for an unscheduled lunch with Members to discuss official business after a Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute ("CHCI") meeting on September 13, 2011.⁷
- 4. The disbursement for $72.80 on October 28, 2011 paid for an unscheduled lunch to discuss official business with Members on October 4, 2011.⁸
- 5. The disbursement for $99.91 on December 21, 2011 paid for an unscheduled lunch to discuss official business with Members on November 18, 2011.⁹ This disbursement also covered another reimbursement that was not related to the Members Dining Room.¹⁰

⁵ See Exhibit C for lunch receipt and Mr. Reyes's July 28 schedule.

⁶ See Exhibit D for lunch receipt and Mr. Reyes's July 19 schedule.

⁷ See Exhibit E for lunch receipt and Mr. Reyes's September 13 schedule.

⁸ See Exhibit F for lunch receipt and Mr. Reyes's October 4 schedule.

⁹ See Exhibit G for lunch receipt and Mr. Reyes's November 18 schedule.

¹⁰ See Exhibit H for lunch receipt.

Especially outrageous, and offensive to Mr. Reyes as a former law enforcement officer, was OCE's entirely unsupported assertion that he may have violated 18 U.S.C. § 607, which prohibits the solicitation of campaign funds in public space. Even if it had been proper for OCE to disregard Mr. Reyes's explanation about the reporting of the disbursements, and to conclude instead that they represented prohibited political activity, the findings present no facts whatsoever to suggest that Mr. Reyes made any solicitation of funds in connection with any of the meetings in question. The OCE findings do not even attempt to present circumstantial evidence of any prohibited fundraising.

B. Mr. Reyes did not convert campaign funds to personal use.

The FEC's former spokesman, Mr. Biersack, was appropriately guarded when asked by the El Paso Times whether Mr. Reyes's spending qualified as prohibited personal use. Yet OCE showed no such caution. OCE took its mandate to review "any alleged violation by a Member, officer, or employee of the House of any law, rule [or] ... regulation"¹¹ as an invitation to interpret FEC rules, reducing an extraordinarily complex area of these same rules to a footnote discussion.¹²

Omitted in OCE's discussion, but well established under FEC regulations and precedent, is that campaigns have "wide discretion" in determining how to spend campaign funds,¹³ and that funds may be used "to defray expenses in connection with a campaign for federal office,"¹⁴ "to defray any ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with the recipient's duties as a holder of federal office,"¹⁵ and "for any other lawful purpose" besides personal use.¹⁶ Personal use is defined as "any use of funds in a campaign account . . . to fulfill a commitment, obligation, or expense of any person that would exist irrespective of the candidate's campaign or duties as a federal officeholder."¹⁷ The FEC has also created a list of expenses that constitute per se personal use that should not be reimbursed by a campaign under the "assum[ption] that, in the indicated circumstances, these expenses would exist irrespective of the candidate's campaign or duties as a Federal officerholder.¹⁸

This list of per se personal use expenses includes, inter alia, "mortgage, rent, or utility payments for any part of any personal residence of the candidate or a member of the candidate's family."¹⁹ In its Explanation and Justification, the FEC interpreted the "mortgage, rent, or utility payments" as follows, to allow for situations like Mr. Reves's:

It is important to note that [the inclusion of "mortgage, rent, and utilities" on the per se list of expenses] does not prohibit the campaign from using a portion of the candidate's personal residence for campaign purposes. It merely limits the committee's ability to pay rent for such a use. The candidate retains the option of using his or her personal residence in the campaign, so long as it is done at no cost to the committee....

Nor should this rule be read to prohibit a campaign committee from paying the cost of long distance telephone calls associated with the campaign, even if those calls are made on a telephone located in a personal residence of the candidate or a member of the candidate's family. Since these calls are separately itemized on the residential telephone bill, they can easily be attributed to the campaign without raising allocation issues.²⁰

The FEC does not mention Internet charges in its Explanation and Justification, which was issued before the Internet was in common public use. The FEC's logic with regard to longdistance telephone calls, however, applies equally to Internet services, insofar as they can be correctly attributed entirely to the campaign.

Here, in keeping with the prohibition on payments for rent and utilities, the Reves campaign made no payments to Rebecca Reves to rent that portion of her property that was used as a campaign office. Mr. Reyes, rather, personally paid to rent the space.²¹ Although the Committee did make certain payments for communications services, it did only after separating out those portions of the bill that would have existed were it not for the campaign, in keeping with the FEC's guidance in the Explanation and Justification.

²¹ Ultimately, Mr. Reyes personally paid the committee's utility bills as well. The Reyes Committee reimbursed Mr. Reves for disbursements made to Potomac Electric on January 4, 2008, December 19, 2008, and February 12, 2010. Mr. Reyes, however, subsequently reimbursed the campaign for these disbursements. See Exhibit I for check.

Specifically, the campaign made the following disbursements after allocating those portions of the expense that would have existed were it not for the campaign:

- Disbursements for Dish Network on Jan. 4, 2008, Dec. 19, 2008, and Feb. 12, 2010
- Disbursements for AOL Services on Jan. 4, 2008, Dec. 19, 2008, and Feb. 12, 2010
- Disbursements for Southern Bell on Jan. 4, 2008, Dec. 19, 2008, and Feb. 12, 2010
- Disbursement for DirectTV on October 18, 2010
- Disbursement for Verizon Wireless on February 24, 2010

The Reyes campaign also made certain other non-rent expenditures to improve its campaign office. These expenditures would not have been necessary irrespective of the campaign and were therefore allowable campaign expenditures under FEC rules.²² Specifically, the campaign paid to install shelving to house its records, reimbursing Mr. Reyes for disbursements made to Home Depot on April 19, 2010 and June 18, 2010. It paid an outside vendor to rid the area of pests in order to protect its campaign records and make the space usable as an office, making disbursements to Orkin Pest Control on March 17, 2009, May 13, 2009, and June 16, 2009. It made a disbursement for a computer for its campaign office to Dell Computer on January 4, 2008. Finally, it made an expenditure for a television so that office personnel could stay abreast of rapidly changing news. It made this expenditure to Walmart Stores on July 21, 2011.²³

C. OCE exceeded its authority in making the instant referral.

Under OCE's own rules, it "shall refer a matter to the Standards Committee for further review if it determines there is a substantial reason to believe the allegations based on all the information then known to the Board."²⁴ A "substantial reason to believe exists where there is such relevant evidence a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion."²⁵

Here, OCE developed no independent evidence to support the allegations against Mr. Reyes. It relied entirely on entries in Mr. Reyes's publicly available FEC reports. When Mr. Reyes informed OCE that the entries were the result of his treasurer's particular coding protocol, and did not actually support a claim of prohibited use of official space, OCE disregarded his $^{^{22}}$ 11 C.F.R. § 113.1(g)(1)(ii); Adv. Op. 2011-05 (Terry) (allowing a campaign committee to pay for upgrades to a home security system because the need for such a system would not have existed irrespective of the campaign); Adv. Op. 1993-01 (Burton) (allowing Rep. Burton to use campaign funds to pay to rent a shed built with personal funds on his personal property, in which to store campaign materials).

²³ The Reyes campaign also made a disbursement for building maintenance to Lowe's on April 19, 2010. Although this disbursement would not have existed were it not for the campaign and was therefore allowable under § 113.1(g)(1)(ii), Mr. Reyes subsequently personally reimbursed the campaign for the disbursement. response, without developing any further contrary information. And when Mr. Reves explained why the disbursements with respect to his campaign office were not personal use, OCE disregarded that explanation also, again without developing any contrary information. OCE's unsupported conclusions cannot constitute a reasonable basis to believe the allegations against Mr. Reves.²⁶ let alone probable cause to initiate a second-phase review or a substantial reason to believe the allegations, especially where Mr. Reves has offered consistent and reasonable explanations.

OCE attempts to buttress its non-findings with a "negative inference" that it claims it may draw from Mr. Reves's "refusal to cooperate." Yet OCE has no authority to draw such an inference. Its authorizing resolution expressly prohibits "any conclusions regarding the validity of allegations or the guilt or innocence of the individual....²⁷ Even if OCE could draw such an inference, it would not be appropriate here, as Mr. Reves tried throughout the investigation to provide OCE with the information necessary to resolve it, meeting with OCE investigative counsel and submitting three thorough responses to its inquiries. OCE branded Mr. Reves as "noncooperative" because he would not, in response to OCE's sweeping requests, submit to a fishing expedition that was unsupported by any disclosed, credible, factual predicate,

This is not the first time OCE has breached its authorizing resolution by drawing a prohibited conclusion of guilt, prejudicing the rights of the Member involved.²⁸ Here, however, the result is especially unjust. Mr. Reyes will leave the Congress in less than four months, creating the possibility that OCE's Report and Findings will be the unrebutted last word on his career. The Committee has acknowledged that there are "strong arguments against release of OCE's Report and Findings" when the rules are violated to the Member's detriment.²⁹ These same arguments are present here. They are made even stronger when OCE, having violated its rules, can engineer the public release of flawed findings, with only a limited opportunity for scrutiny or rebuttal.

There is no substantial reason to believe that Mr. Reyes has engaged in any wrongdoing. We respectfully request, therefore, that you promptly dismiss this matter.

BEFORE ME, the undersigned authority, on this date personally appeared RONALD E.

PATE, who, after being by me duly sworn on his oath deposed as follows:

1. "My name is RONALD E. PATE. I am over eighteen years of age and reside in El Paso County, Texas. I am fully competent to make this Affidavit and this Affidavit is made upon my personal knowledge.

2. "I am a certified public accountant and a partner in the firm of Pate & Appleby, LLP. My firm is located at 1011 Montana, El Paso, Texas 79902, and I may be reached by telephone at 915-532- or by Email at Capateappleby.com.

3. "I have been the treasurer for Congressman Silvestre Reyes' campaign since he first announced his intentions to run for Congress for the 16th Congressional District of Texas in 1995. Congressman Reyes was successful in his campaign and began his service in Congress in 1996.

4. "As his treasurer, I assist his campaign with financial matters including reporting campaign donations and expenditures. My office physically prepares the reports required by the Federal Elections Commission (FEC).

5. "Congressman Reyes' campaign committee is known as the Reyes Committee, Inc. ("Campaign Committee"). My office interacts with the Campaign Committee to process and report campaign donations and expenditures. This includes the reimbursement of expenses to Congressman Reyes when an expense is campaign related.

6. 'In accordance with FEC rules and regulations, Congressman Reyes is reimbursed for expenses paid by him that are campaign related. Some of these expenses are incurred in Washington, D.C., some in the home district of El Paso and others during the Congressman's travels throughout the country. It is Congressman Reyes' practice to periodically provide my office with receipts of campaign related expenses that the Congressman incurred and for which he was entitled to reimbursement. He provides my office with campaign related receipts. We were often provided with these receipts by a member of his campaign staff. 7. "Once we receive receipts and a request for reimbursement, my office reviews them so as to issue a reimbursement but also so that they could be itemized for reporting to the FEC. A member of my staff reviews the receipts and categorize them by vendor, purpose of the expenditure, and any information required to be reported by the FEC. I review the reports before the FEC filings. As permitted by law, a reimbursement check for the campaign related expense is issued to Congressman Reves when appropriate.

8. "For the period beginning 2008, I was assisted in this process by a bookkeeper in my office by the name of Terry Anaya. Ms. Anaya is employed by my firm, she processes the receipts and requests for reimbursement to make sure that there was sufficient information for the FEC reporting. I review her work and review the FEC filings before they were actually reported. If a matter is routine, Congressman Reyes is not involved.

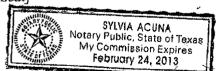

9. "Meals reimbursed by the Campaign Committee are reflected in the reports as "campaign meetings". The use of the term was for coding purposes to reflect that the expenditures were paid by the Campaign Committee.

10. "Recently, I became aware that the reports filed with the FEC reflect that certain meals reimbursed by the Campaign Committee were at the U.S. House of Representatives Members Dining Room in 2011. The meetings for these meals were not for the purposes of raising campaign contributions nor discussing campaign activities. The meals were associated with his official duties as a member of Congress. The use of the term was for coding purposes to reflect that the expenditures were paid by the Campaign Committee but the use of the term does not reflect that the actual purpose or activity at the meals. The decision to code those entries in this manner was my office's decision, not Congressman Reyes'.
